THIS IS WHAT CHANGE
LOOKS
LIKE THE VISION

We have a vision of a healthy and prosperous city, one that provides real opportunity for all children and adults, especially those who live in poverty and are held back because of racial discrimination.

WE KNOW IT CAN HAPPEN. WE SEE PROGRESS EVERY DAY.

OSI-Baltimore was created in 1998 to find solutions to problems that have challenged numerous urban centers, with the idea that many of the solutions found here could be transferable to other places around the country.

With an advisory board composed of the city’s foremost leaders, practitioners, and scholars, and a staff of exceptional professionals who are leaders in their fields, we analyzed the root causes of Baltimore’s problems. From there, we identified three interconnected issues that must be addressed in order for the city to thrive in the future. And we set out to find practical solutions to change the status quo.

CHANGE TAKES AUDACIOUS IDEAS, PRAGMATIC SOLUTIONS, PARTNERSHIPS, PATIENCE AND PERSISTENCE.

We are working to create a different city. With community partners and policy makers, OSI-Baltimore is developing effective solutions and making lasting change in Baltimore.
TO MAKE THIS VISION A REALITY

WE Help youth stay connected to and engaged with school and on the road to success.

WE Tackle drug addiction by making treatment readily accessible.

WE Reduce incarceration for youth and adults, curtailing the damage to families and the spiraling costs of prisons and jails.

WE Build a growing corps of individuals working on the ground, directly with the community. Over the past fifteen years we have supported the ingenuity of more than 130 Baltimore Community Fellows - dedicated social entrepreneurs and visionaries.

FELLOWS CHANGE LIVES EVERY SINGLE DAY.

AUDACIOUS THINKING FOR LASTING CHANGE.

We focus on three interconnected issues that must be addressed in order for the city to thrive. Our goals are audacious but, working with public and private partners, we offer pragmatic solutions.

THE DRUG ADDICTION TREATMENT PROGRAM WORKS TO:

• Close the addiction treatment gap for low-income patients by taking advantage of the opportunities of health care reform.
• Support the availability of addiction services not covered by health care reform.
• Decrease the harms of drug use, lower the threshold to treatment, and reduce stigma.

THE EDUCATION AND YOUTH DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM AIMS TO:

• Keep children connected to school: pre-k through high school graduation.
• Assure that every child attends school every day.
• Support school reform efforts to create new schools.
• Expand opportunities for learning when school is not in session.

THE BALTIMORE COMMUNITY FELLOWSHIPS PROGRAM CONTINUES TO:

• Recruit, select and support dynamic, resourceful and committed social entrepreneurs to become Baltimore Community Fellows.
• Build an active corps of individuals committed to revitalizing underserved neighborhoods by providing resources for a growing Community Fellows alumni body, now over 130 individuals.

THE CRIMINAL AND JUVENILE JUSTICE PROGRAM SEeks TO:

• Increase the number of Baltimore residents who are diverted from the criminal and juvenile justice systems, particularly those accused of non-violent offenses.
• Promote systemic reform of unfair criminal and juvenile justice policies and practices relating to arrests, pre-trial procedures, sentencing, conditions of confinement, and parole and probation.
• Ensure that individuals with criminal and juvenile records successfully reenter and reintegrate into Baltimore City.
TACKLING DRUG ADDICTION
- A program training primary health care professionals allows for the early identification of addiction and referral to treatment and integrates addiction treatment into whole health care for all patients regardless of insurance status.
- As Maryland begins to implement health care reform, advocates are working for a comprehensive addiction treatment benefit that will be available to all in need.
- Our advocates continue to increase the availability of addiction treatment by training health professionals to bill public and private insurance providers, a skill that will become increasingly important under health care reform.

KEEPING KIDS CONNECTED TO SCHOOL
- As we worked with the school district to reduce suspensions, kids graduating from high school rose—particularly among African American boys—making Baltimore a national leader in this positive trend.
- The Maryland State Board of Education, taking its lead from our work in Baltimore City, is now working to change its discipline policies to reduce the number of kids pushed out of the classroom through suspensions or other practices.
- With a texting campaign rating bus transportation, the MTA is improving its service so kids can get to school on time.

TALKING ABOUT RACE
- Responding to historical and ongoing discrimination and segregation in our city and state, our public conversation about race continues in venues such as the library, in art galleries, and on the radio.

REDUCING THE OVERUSE OF INCARCERATION WITHOUT COMPROMISING PUBLIC SAFETY
- OSI-Baltimore grantees convinced the state not to build a new $70 million jail for youth charged as adults. Grantees continue to work to end the practice of charging youth as adults.
- In partnership with a juvenile court judge, prosecutors, school administrators, and community-based organizations, city school police are arresting fewer students for nonviolent misdemeanor offenses and referring students, instead, to community and school-based programs.
- Maryland’s burgeoning prison population is gradually decreasing, in part because of a partnership with Maryland Parole Commission officials and an OSI-Baltimore grantee, which has resulted in the creation of parole guidelines that appropriately release people who are at low risk of re-offending.

Baltimore Community Fellows
Our fellows continue to use their creative ingenuity to make significant changes on the ground. Examples include:
- Run by a former collegiate athlete, a local soccer program offers skill building, comradesry, tutoring and mentoring for new immigrants and refugee youth.
- A garden now grows inside the Baltimore Detention Center, tended by young women detainees. And a network of urban farmers partner with community members to improve access to fresh food and good health across the city.
- Using volunteers from Johns Hopkins University graduate programs, incarcerated youth receive GED prep and college readiness courses. A partnership with a nonprofit organization makes scholarships possible for these young men who have great need but cannot receive financial aid from the federal government.

WHAT DOES CHANGE FOR BALTIMORE MEAN?
Working in partnership with the private and public sectors, we see lasting changes created for Baltimore every day.

HIGHLIGHTS THIS PAST YEAR INCLUDE:
- Keeping kids connected to school: As we worked with the school district to reduce suspensions, kids graduating from high school rose—particularly among African American boys—making Baltimore a national leader in this positive trend. The Maryland State Board of Education, taking its lead from our work in Baltimore City, is now working to change its discipline policies to reduce the number of kids pushed out of the classroom through suspensions or other practices. With a texting campaign rating bus transportation, the MTA is improving its service so kids can get to school on time.

Baltimore Community Fellowships
The Baltimore Community Fellowships program works to meet the challenges facing Baltimore’s most needy communities by identifying and supporting social innovators of unusual promise and providing them with the ingredients to ensure their ideas have a stable foundation and long-term viability. Each fellow receives a stipend of $60,000 over 18 months.

Harold Bailey
Harold Bailey will partner with the Tuerk House Recovery Centers to provide peer-to-peer counseling, social counseling workshops and employment preparation services for formerly incarcerated males before they transition from the facilities

Antoine Bennett
In partnership with the New Song Community Church, Antoine Bennett will establish Men of Valuable Action—a leadership development initiative that will work with men 18 and older to reduce recidivism, promote educational goals, encourage family stability and support career development

Lawrence Brown
Lawrence Brown will partner with the Union Baptist Head Start Program to establish You’re the Quarterback: Gameplan for Life. By focusing on the football team narrative as an organizing tool, Lawrence will help men in central Baltimore neighborhoods plan and succeed in getting jobs and health insurance

Cheryl Carmona
In partnership with the Boone Street Farm, Cheryl Carmona will manage the Greater Greenmount trash and recycling campaign. The campaign will educate residents in the community about proper waste disposal and recycling practices to protect urban water ways and reduce health hazards. She will use the Boone Street Farm as a platform to demonstrate the productive agricultural uses of waste in these neighborhoods
LAUREN GOODSMITH
Lauren Goodsmith will establish a Baltimore area network of mental health professionals trained in culturally adaptive methods who will provide counseling and therapeutic services at no or minimal cost to refugee clients who have experienced trauma and the stresses of acculturation.

DAVID HORNBECK
Working in partnership with Community Resource Schools, David Hornbeck will establish a system of support services, including an emphasis on community engagement, advocacy and partnerships with businesses and faith communities, designed to improve the education, health and well-being of children and families in each of the school communities.

ANNE KOTLEBA
As the co-founder of the Baltimore United Viewfinders, Anne Kotleba will work with a coalition of community partners and the Maryland Institute College of Art to use digital media to engage East Baltimore youth in peer-to-peer arts and social justice programming.

PASCHA LEE
In partnership with the Friendship Preparatory Academy at Calverton, Pascha Lee will establish the ImagineMe Book Project and build long-term mentoring relationships to support the academic and behavioral needs of middle school girls.

CHRISTOPHER MERRIAM
In partnership with Bike Maryland, Christopher Merriam will build Bikemore to enhance the mobility through biking of roughly one-third of Baltimore residents who do not own a car; and, by promoting all forms of cycling, he aims to increase the number of bike riders and advocate for the rights, safety, and equality of Baltimore’s diverse cycling community.

ARTHUR MORGAN
Arthur Morgan will work to expand Gather Baltimore: Gaining Access To Healthy Eating Resources, a volunteer-based program that collects and glean fresh produce donated by farmers markets and farms for distribution to people without a healthy food source in Baltimore through local hospitals, meal programs, and faith communities.

AKIL RAHIM
Collaborating with the Head Start program, Akil Rahim will nurture and develop the interests of students and their parents in science, technology, engineering, art and mathematics education. Parents will use the lessons learned to continue to engage in the child’s educational experience as the child progresses through elementary school.

BASHI ROSE
Bashi Rose will establish the Direct Responses Alleviate Misdirected Aggression Program (D.R.A.M.A.) to give African American male high school students and incarcerated adults an opportunity to use theatre and film as tools to navigate conflict without resorting to violence, with the goal of preventing a cycle of incarceration and recidivism.

ALUMNI FELLOWS
The Baltimore Community Fellows have grown into a thriving network of more than 130 activists. Most are still working in Baltimore’s communities, and many have seen their projects flourish in ways no one could have imagined. To continue this progression, OSI-Baltimore has awarded 10 grants to strengthen organizations founded by fellows whose work has been particularly effective.

A NEW FAITH COMMUNITY
Dwayne Hess, 2009 Fellow
$15,000 over one year to improve services by developing a fundraising and strategic plan, and engage in a program evaluation.

BALTIMORE GREEN MAP
Janet Felsten, 1998 Fellow
$22,328 over one year to improve its website and enrich current k-8 projects by using mapping to study the environment.

HABESHA
Emery Tre Subira Whitlow, 2009 Fellow
$8,200 over one year to secure technical assistance for board and fundraising development and to develop an evaluation tool.

HAND IN HAND BALTIMORE
Jessica Turral, 2010 Fellow
$23,000 over one year to enhance the Expanding Horizons mentoring program and create a marketing and community outreach plan.

INCENTIVE MENTORING PROGRAM
Sarah Hemminger, 2009 Fellow
$15,000 over one year to support the development of a program evaluation and monitoring system.

MARYLAND FOSTER YOUTH RESOURCE CENTER
Shantel Randolph, 2007 Fellow
$25,000 over one year to expand its services to include housing and employment development services for youth who have aged out of the foster care system.

NEW LENS
Rebecca Yenawine, 1999 Fellow
$25,000 over one year to enable New Lens to construct a comprehensive assessment tool and facilitate an evaluation to build capacity and sustainability.

PRO BONO RESOURCE CENTER OF MARYLAND
Rebecca Coleman, 2010 Fellow
